employment is a fundamental right
Let's stop HIV and not the people living with HIV

HIV is transmitted in only one of three ways, and privacy at the workplace is not one of them:

- unprotected sex
- children and breastfeeding
- contact with contaminated blood

People living with HIV and AIDS can live long and healthy lives and work normally.

The Italian Constitution, national laws and international norms equally protect the workplace from any forms of discrimination, also in relation to health issues and HIV.

And yet, ignorance and prejudices still infringe these rights: unfair requests for HIV testing to access public examinations or prior to signing working contracts, dismissals due to HIV, workplace transfers and unjustified changes in working assignments, or data protection breaches.

Employment is a fundamental right of all persons and men
