Objective

Principles

- Build on previous work – especially the earlier WHO report
- Indicators need to be simplified and streamlined
- Indicators must be relevant to the European context
- Data collection should be harmonised with other processes, e.g. Commission reporting, UNGASS

Dublin Declaration

- Thirty three actions...
- In five areas:
 - Leadership (7)
 - Prevention (12)
 - Living with HIV (6)
 - Partnership (7)
 - Follow-up (1)
- Overlap between 'leadership' and 'partnership'

Key Deliverables

- Final set of indicators
- Indicator definitions & standards
- Country workshop & questionnaire
- Issues with UNGASS reporting
- Indicator-based monitoring report

Indicator Standards

A good indicator should meet the following five standards:

1. The indicator is needed and useful.
2. The indicator has technical merit.
3. The indicator is fully-defined.
4. It is feasible to measure the indicator.
5. The indicator has been field-tested or used operationally.

In addition, where indicators are presented as a set, it should be coherent and balanced.
