First Regional Consultation on Viral Hepatitis in the WHO European Region: Progress on the Way to Elimination

11–13 February 2019, Tbilisi, Georgia

The meeting will be an opportunity to review country progress, discuss challenges and exchange good practices relating to the response to viral hepatitis. This includes national planning, surveillance and monitoring, prevention, testing and strengthening laboratory capacity, improving access to diagnostics and treatment and optimizing viral hepatitis management strategies in line with the updated WHO guidelines.

Participants will be nominated representatives of all WHO European Member States, regional partners and leading experts. The agenda will reflect the latest developments in science and public health responding to the needs of Member States.

Expected results and Outputs

- An overview of the status of the comprehensive national response to viral hepatitis in the Member States of the WHO European Region;
- representatives of Member States, partner organizations and other stakeholders updated about the latest scientific and public health developments and current WHO guidelines, as well about good practices in the health sector response to viral hepatitis in Member States of the WHO European Region; and
- a meeting report prepared by the WHO Regional Office for Europe and published online, which should inform the progress report being prepared for the 69th Session of the WHO Regional Committee (September 2019).

Regional consultation on HIV and viral hepatitis testing and HIV pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP) in countries of the WHO European Region

22–23 January 2019, Berlin, Germany

HIV and viral hepatitis represent 2 major public health challenges faced by the European Region. To intensify efforts in testing and prevention, both a vital part of the solution, a meeting has been convened to review countries' progress and challenges, and exchange good practice, with the focus on non-European Union/European Economic Area Member States of the WHO European Region. The agenda will cover WHO recommended approaches in HIV and viral hepatitis testing, as well as discussions of the latest evidence and progress in implementation of PrEP in the European Region, including:

- HIV and viral hepatitis testing strategies and practices across the Region and innovative approaches;
- HIV and viral hepatitis testing services scale-up and strengthening linkage to care to enable better access to treatment, through expanded community-based approaches and HIV self-testing;
- cost-effectiveness of testing strategies for an accelerated and maintained response of national programmes;
- PrEP roll-out implementation and monitoring in the Member States of the WHO European Region.

The meeting will provide a comprehensive overview of national testing strategies and updated policies in the participating countries, as well as briefing participants and exchanging information on the latest evidence and good practices in the field of HIV and viral hepatitis testing and PrEP implementation.

How to improve the delivery of PrEP was the subject of a two-day meeting in Stockholm, Sweden, held on 15 and 16 November entitled Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis in the EU/EEA: PrEP Service Delivery and Monitoring: Minimum Standards and Key Principles. Representatives of 22 European countries joined together with PrEP users and community HIV advocates to seek ways to strengthen the provision and monitoring of PrEP.

Gay men and other men who have sex with men are the most affected by HIV in Europe. PrEP users in Europe are almost all gay men and other men who have sex with men, but the vast majority do not have formal access to PrEP. Consequently, among those taking PrEP, many access it online and take it with no medical support and monitoring.

PrEP is pre-exposure prophylaxis—the use of antiretroviral medicines to prevent HIV among people who are HIV-negative.

The meeting heard how the offer of PrEP in friendly and accessible settings can attract people to HIV testing and for diagnosis and treatment of other sexually transmitted infections. Taking PrEP provision out of highly specialized centres, in consultation with communities of potential PrEP users, provides a gateway to broader health care. Innovative online approaches to improve PrEP self-management and sexually transmitted infection diagnosis and treatment were presented.

Global Fund Replenishment Conference

The Global Fund Seeks to Raise at least US$14 Billion to Step Up the Fight Against AIDS, TB and Malaria

The Sixth Replenishment

The Global Fund is calling on the world to step up the fight against HIV, TB and malaria. We are just months away from a crucial moment in the fight against the diseases. In October 2019, President Macron will host the Global Fund's Sixth Replenishment Conference in Lyon. This Replenishment seeks to raise at least US$14 billion to help save 16 million lives, avert 234 million infections and help the world get back on track to end these diseases. Of the at least US$14 billion, the Global Fund is calling on the private sector to mobilize at least US$1 billion to step up the fight.

Stepping up the fight should not be seen as a choice, but as the fulfilment of a promise. This moment presents us with an opportunity to take a massive step toward achieving Sustainable Development Goal 3: health and well-being for all. We have no time to waste and we are calling on the world to step up the fight. Now.
